

The proposed change go against the vary ideals this country was founded. Further, I am sure Teddy Roosevelt, the "Anti-trust" president would be appalled that a government agency like the FCC would be considering relaxing regulations that would allow and, in some cases, promote the "building" of huge media corporations like the giant oil and steel companies he fought to break up 100 years ago.

Additionally, if enacted, these changes will start the process that many science fiction writers and storytellers have "warned" readers of for decades--the loss of individual, divergent voices and thought. If only a few media giants own and operate T.V. and radio stations as well as newspapers in areas of the U.S., then people will be "forced" to listen and read opinions and views from a "select" few in positions of considerable power and influence.

Our federal government was formed with this in mind: of the people, for the people, and by the people. I don't the proposed changes follow this motto, but do follow this one: of the media corporations, for the media corporations, and media corporations.

I strongly urge the FCC Commissioners to review the proposed changes with the above comments in mind and do the "right" thing by voting against the proposed changes. By doing the "right" thing, you will not only be living up to the vary ideals that founded this country, but you will also give your children and their children a better life. A life in which individual thought and views are shared and valued and in which media giants don't have a "vice" grip on public thought and debate.
